PRISCILLA spinning, long ago, sighs as she thinks how soon her linen
Will lose its glossy luster, when the wash it once or twice has been in.
She does not know that in the soap the evil lies that makes her suffer.
Its great excess of alkali, which cuts the fiber, makes it rougher.

Our modern maidens need not sigh since IVORY SOAP has been invented,
Containing no free alkali—by which the ruin is prevented.
For linen washed with IVORY SOAP in snowy beauty'll ne'er diminish,
But always, while it lasts, preserve its pristine gloss and lustrous finish.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

SELECT STORY.

JESSIE'S ROMANCE.

AND THE WHOLESOME CHANGE IT WROUGHT IN HER LIFE.

To the mind of youth, the near, the attainable, is always the undesirable. Happiness ever sits enthroned on the lofty heights of the beyond! Only after years of wearying pain and fruitless pursuit of the fleeting vision, do we learn to look among the commonplace and unromantic scenes of everyday life for true content and peace.

Jessie Crofton was a Wisconsin farmer's daughter—young, visionary and romantic; sensitively alive to her lack of talent and of personal beauty, and heartily detesting the dull, prosaic life to which she was doomed by circumstances—her discontent rendering her petulant and irritable. She was not a favorite with her younger brothers and sisters, nor with the maiden aunt who since her mother's death had acted as her father's housekeeper; and though naturally possessed of considerable energy of character, she had no clearly-defined plans for doing any thing to better her condition; she was waiting passively for that fairy chance—much besought, seldom found—to cast at her feet the good she so much desired. The long months dragging wearily on were only rendered endurable by the confident hope of some thing better in store.

That such a girl should possess a lover like Rodney Leare was an unsolved problem to more than one student of human nature. Active, energetic, clear-brained, possessed of fine natural talents and great sweetness of disposition, what was it that attracted him to his plain, ill-tempered neighbor?—unless, indeed, it be one of nature's laws that they who have an excess of her best gifts shall find their highest happiness in sharing their blessings with her less favored children; or, it may be that through the discontent and gloom, he caught faint, occasional glimpses of the angelic nature held in abeyance.

Though Rodney Leare was her devoted ally and champion on all occasions, our heroine neither appreciated his devotion, nor estimated him at his true value. He was so unlike the heroes of romance, she had known him so long and so well, that fancy, the bane of a young girl's mind, refused to invest him with her airy robes. She suffered his attentions because she had not the heart to quarrel with her only friend—but waited patiently the while the coming of the true prince.

Spring had blossomed into summer, when walking one day in the orchard, Jessie found her fate on a bit of torn paper which the wind had wafted to her feet. Turning it over in her hand, her eye fell upon this singular advertisement:

"WANTED—CORRESPONDENCE.

"A young gentleman of good social position; talented and wealthy; possessed with more than ordinary amount of good looks, and irreproachable moral character, wishes to open a correspondence with a young lady, with a view to matrimony. All letters strictly confidential. Address HUGH MANNERING, BOX 150, GLEN HAVEN."

In those earlier days, advertisements like the above, (which have since been scattered broadcast over the land, luring many a soul on to destruction) were comparatively unknown. To Jessie Crofton's aimless life the words came like the blinding light of a new revelation. Here was the true ideal for which her soul had longed; the modern Bayard without flaw or stain; and accepting without cavil or suspicion the destiny in store for her, before nightfall she had dispatched to Glen Haven a long and confidental epistle, detailing with touching pathos the sorrow and loneliness of her loveless condition.

Had Jessie possessed a wise and tender mother who understood her weakenesse, and sympathized with her in the discontent and unhappiness so common to young girls ere life's great labors are fully entered upon, that letter would have never been sent, and this history would have remained unwritten. But she had never been encouraged in the practice of making her aunt her confident, and her father was too wholly absorbed in business to waste any time trying to understand his children, so it was not strange that she kept her correspondence to herself, and only her anxiety when on the arrival of the stage, she went, as was her custom, for the family mail. On one point she had displayed an unusual amount of caution; fearing that the matter might come to her father's ears, and be ill received, she had given an assumed name, which soon became familiar at the post-office as day after day passed by and her frequent inquiries received the unvarying reply "no letter." At last, when she had given up all hope of hearing from her unknown friend, she was happily surprised by the receipt of the long-looked for missive, wrapped in a dainty envelope, and directed in a bold, manly hand. Almost beside herself with joy, she could hardly wait until she was out of the village and had reached the shade of a small grove, before sitting down on a rock by the wayside and tearing open the letter.

It began with a prettily-worded apology for the writer's neglect caused by his absence on business, and proceeded in glowing terms to describe the pleasure her letter had given him. He had singled it out from many hundreds received (so he wrote) for the truth and earnestness revealed in every line. In her he was sure of finding a congenial spirit, and henceforth his life would be bound up in her letters.

There were many more pages filled with similar phrases, with lofty sounding passages from the poets, and sentimental repinings over the destiny that had so long separated them. But to Jessie's unsophisticated heart every word was as precious as gold. It was the one perfect letter ever written; restoring it to its envelope she resumed her homeward walk, hardly conscious that the way was long and the heat oppressive.

That evening, when Rodney Leare made one of his customary unceremonious calls, he could not but perceive that there was a new barrier between them. Jessie sat silent and absent-minded, and gave no heed to his wittiest sallies. Finding her in such an unamiable mood, he at once directed his conversation to her father, when, making some trifling excuse, she arose and left the room to return no more that evening. After perusing Hugh Mannering's tenderly set words and smoothly flowing phrases she could not patiently endure the clashing discordance of her sometime lover's rougher speech. Rodney waited patiently awhile for her return, and at last took his leave in as much of a fret as his sunny nature allowed him to indulge in.

Autumn came, and the mellow days and golden evenings were imbued for Jessie Crofton with the glory and splendor of love's young dream. Never had the hand of the Great Artist tinted the woods and hills with such gorgeous dyes; never did such a vail of beauty overhang the dells; never did lakelets lie in such a dream of peace. Earth was a new Eden, and reversing the ancient order of things, a new Eve awaited the coming of her Adam; and it dimmed not the brightness of her glory that the one friend of lifetime, disheartened by her frequent rebuffs, troubled her no longer with his presence. Rodney Leare, grown a trifle silent and sad, striving to conquer a love which his better judgement assured him would never bring him contentment or peace, went his own way; and if sometimes his strong hand warded the heavier burdens of life from her weaker shoulders, she was still unrecognising and unthankful.

In the late fall the little household of the Croftons was surprised by the receipt of a letter from an almost forgotten cousin of the family, whom the tide of fortune had driven into the little harbor of Glen Haven. The letter contained an earnest request that Cousin Joe or some of his family should pay the writer a visit. Only by the strongest force of will could Jessie retain her calmness until in family conclave it was decided that she should be the fortunate one to accept the invitation. Her father could not spare the time, and Aunt Ruth was only too glad of a little respite from the niece's fault-finding and general discontent; and so the succeeding week found her safely ensconsed on the stage coach, her face bright with anticipation, en route for Glen Haven—and Hugh Mannering.

There is something inexpressibly sad in the utter ruin of a young life's first romance. However unstable the foundation, it was reared in touching the faith and purity of purpose Happy the soul that

"Rising on its wreck at last,
To something nobler may attain"

Anxious to surprise her correspondent, in the letter mailed the day before her departure Jessie had given no hint of her intended visit to Glen Haven, and the earlier part of her journey was whiled in the happy dreams of their meeting.

Toward noon the sky became overcast, the wind rose in fury, and a few flakes, the vanguard of the forces the Frost King held in reserve, came flying through the air. As the wind became colder and keener, Jessie was aroused from her happy dreams by a sudden neuralgia in her face, which continued to grow worse and worse, until by the time she arrived at her journey's end she was almost frantic with pain. Giving the driver her cousin's address, with directions concerning her baggage, she stopped at the first apothecary's shop to obtain an opiate.

The low building which bore on its front in huge gilt letters the sign DRUGS & MEDICINES, boasted also a smaller one, POST OFFICE; and as Jessie reached the door, a man carrying a bundle of letters brushed past her. She drew back with an indistinctive feeling of disgust. To her sensative soul there were something inexpressibly loathsome in his presence. His shabby black suit was soiled and torn, his face was coarse and sensual, and the bold blue eyes seemed to stab her with their insulting stare.

Striving to conquer her repugnance, Jessie lowered her veil, and, following him into the store, gave her order to the clerk in a subdued voice, and while he was preparing the medicine cast a hasty glance to the farther end of the room where a number of men, talking and smoking, were gathered around the stove. As the sleepy-looking individual approached the group he was greeted with a shout of laughter. Cried one voice, louder than the rest:

"What's the news to-day, Sir Hugh?"

The reply came fearfully clear and distinct:

"I've got another letter from my charmer, boys. Shall I read it?" And without waiting for an answer, he tore open the envelope and began reading aloud.

As the first words fell upon her ears, Jessie grew faint and grasped the railing for support. Then a sudden rush of indignation gave her strength to stand upright and listen, with burning cheeks and flashing eyes, the words—her own words written in all tenderness of heart and purity of purpose—fell on her ears, interspersed by the reader with coarse jests and frequent oaths.

It seemed an age to her before the awkward clerk succeeded in making change; then taking her package she quitted the store, followed by the laughter, loud and long, of the listening crowd around the stove.

This, then, was the end of all her hopes and bright dreams! To this low level had she descended—to become the jest and by-word of a party of village loafers! Then she remembered the readers coarse allusion to the "ole woman and the young uns at home", the tears came thick and fast, and in sudden contrast rose before her face the figure of a man so innately pure and noble that to him all womankind was sacred—he, the trusted knight-errant of the poor and defenseless.

But there was little time for thought. Already she had reached her cousin's residence, and, repressing her feelings, she was obliged to respond to the hearty welcome of the family—to ask and answer questions, until her brain was in a whirl; but when the long evening was over, and she was alone in her room, she threw herself upon the bed in a passion of tears and self-reproach.

"If I live," she said at last between her sobs, "I will try and make myself worthy of Rodney Leare, the truest, the best and the noblest man the world ever saw;" and with this resolve in her heart she fell asleep.

The visit to Glen Haven marked the beginning of a new era in Jessie Crofton's life. A few cautiously-worded questions revealed more and more the baseness of her correspondent; and so deep was her sense of shame and self-reproach that she was glad when her visit came to an end and she was able to bid her kind relatives good-bye and return home.

She had not been at home three days but that every one felt that a change had come over her. Instead of considering the younger children a care and trouble, she set herself to work to win their confidence and affection, and to improve their minds. Her tired, overworked aunt felt a sudden sense of rest and support as quietly and unobtrusively she took upon herself, one after another, various household duties. It was long before the sting of her bitter experience had passed away; but a life filled with earnest, helpful labor finds little time for vain, regretful looking back to what might have been; and when, after a few busy happy years, she became the wife of Rodney Leare, she learned to look upon the one dark spot in her life as a much-needed lesson, from which she had learned contentment and peace.—St. Louis Magazine.

The Prohibition Amendment.

The Times was in error in stating that the proposed Prohibition amendment to the Constitution might be submitted to the people at the February election, if promptly passed by the new Legislature. The fact was overlooked that a proposed amendment to the fundamental law must be twice advertised in each county fully three months preceeding the election. When once passed by the Legislature, it must be advertised to enable the people to act intelligently in selecting members of the Legislature, who will be called upon to vote on its second adoption by that body; and it must then be advertieed for three months before the people vote on its ratification.

There is not a shadow of doubt that the next Legislature will adopt the Prohibition amendment without change, which will bring it directly to a vote of the people. The change of a single word in the proposed amendment by the second Legislature acting on it, would postpone its submission to the people for two years. Efforts will doubtless be made to amend the proposed Prohibition amendment; but the new Legislature is more decidedly committed to the submission of the Prohibition question to the people than was the last. It is as certain therefore, as anything can be in the future that the Prohibition amendment will be submitted to the people in 1889.

Just when it will be submitted is in doubt. The Legislature could readily act on it in time to have it advertised three months and be submitted at a special election in May. The only reason in favor of a special election is the fact that the friends of the Prohibition movement are urgent to have the issue submitted to the people when there are no partisan questions or interests to complicate the struggle. It is probable that the Legislature will yield a special election to the Prohibitionists, as a majority of the legislators and party leaders who advocate the submission of Prohibition to the people, will vote against prohibition and confidently expect it to be defeated at the polls. The Prohibition amendment in Pennsylvania is simply a political tub to the Prohibition whale and the high license system was adopted not only because it was a public necessity, but also because it would surely knock out Prohibition.—Times.

Romance In The South.

A YOUNG SOUTHERNER TRIES TO TAKE HIS SWEETHEART FROM A CONVENT.

The placid life of the Sisters who occupy the Convent of St. Joseph in this city was rudely disturbed this morning by a romantic episode. As a bevy of girls were wending their way from the convent to the Cathedral under the protecting care of fourteen Sisters, a carriage containing two young men drove up. One of the occupants of the carriage, a stalwart young man, jumped out, and seizing one of the young ladies, attempted to place her in the carriage. The Sisters, with loud outcries, rushed to the rescue, surrounded the couple and eventually succeeded in preventing the abduction.

In the meantime a crowd had gathered. The other young man had alighted and taken to his heels, and realizing that his bold scheme had failed utterly the adventurous young man sprang into the carriage, whipped his horses and was away before a hand could be raised to stop him. Later he returned and explained his conduct.

He is the auditor of Disston's Sugar Belt Railroad, now building, and the young lady is the daughter of a well-known jeweler of Kissimee. Although they were much attached to each other the parents of the young lady objected to the match and sent the girl to the convent. On Thursday the young man succeeded in passing the quarantine and getting into the city. He took a young newspaper correspondent into his confidence, and armed with a marriage, license and a carriage, took his chances at the convent gate. But for the sudden desertion of his friend he might have been successful.—New York Herald.

The Newburgh Evening Press says that a prominent physician in that city is remarkably successful with the following treatment for diptheria: When the small yellow blisters come in the throat, bath the neck in turpentine until it is red but not blistered, and keep it red. Then take alum and burn it on a hot stove until it can be powdered, and then with the finger put it on the sores of the throat once in two hours. Give halt a teaspoonful of castor oil and three or four drops of turpentine every three or four hours. If very far advanced, touch the sores with caustic, diluted with water and place a mustard plaster on the back of the neck from ear to ear.

It is a curious fact that ants have been discovered carrying the plant lice to the roots of corn.

How The Yellow Fever Came.

SURGEON-GENERAL HAMILTON SAYS IT WAS IMPORTED INTO TAMPA LAST YEAR.

At the meeting of the Virginia Medical Society, held at Norfolk last week, Surgeon-General Hamilton gave the following account of the manner in which the epidemic of yellow fever was introduced into this country, the details of which, he said, had been secured at great cost to the Government, and have not before been published:

Last year the yellow fever appeared in Key West in the family of a restaurant keeper by the name of Baker. A family of Bolios, who had kept a hotel in Havana, emigrated, unfortunately for Florida, to Key West. Their household effects were landed and stored above Baker's restaurant. The Baker family died of the fever; thus the fever started, and rapidly became epidemic.

The Government, under the operation of that section of the statutes forbidding interference with local authorities, did nothing except at the request of the Governor to help the local Board to establish a dispensary and pay the expenses of the City Hospital. To assist in the speedy depopulation of the city a refuge camp was established at Egmont, Ky, at the mouth of Tampa Bay. No case from Egmont communicated the disease. The first cases in Tampa were kept secret from August to Oct. 21, 1887. A family of Italians by the name of Turk, fruit dealers, brought the fever into Tampa. The steamers had refused, under orders from the Hillsborough County Board of Health, to bring fruit from Havana or Key West. These Italians, finding it impossible to continue in business, set up a smuggling line, and brought fruit by way of Punta Gorda Bay and overland to Tampa. For this purpose the man Turk and his assistant, "Pete" made frequent surreptitious visits to Key West while the disease was epidemic there, and blankets were purchased in the infected city, used while on the overland trip, and brought to Tampa. It is a significant fact that the whole family of the Italians were the first to be taken sick, and that they were not publicly known to have been out of the town, although the fact is now known. The measures taken by the Government were simply to conform to the wishes of the Governor to aid the Hillsborough County Board of Health.

The duty of preventing the spread of the disease was undertaken by the Florida State Protective Association, an organization consisting of one representative from each county Board of Health, under the Presidency of Dr. King Wyley of Sanford. In December, 1887, the association raised the quarantine against Tampa. The county Board of Health asserted that the disease had disappeared. Unfortunately the disease had not been stamped out, and although the cases of fever lingered all winter in Tampa, its existence there was bitterly denied. From Tampa the disease spread to Plant City, Manatee, and other places, and it is now believed that the fever was at Jacksonville as early as February, 1888. Dr. Guiteras of the Marine Hospital service, an acknowledged expert, says that in his judgment at least two of the cases of "society" fever, of which there were over thirty reported in Jacksonville in that month, had the well-marked clinical history of yellow fever. Nine of these cases died. Dr. Potts treated cases in Bay street in June, and there were probably cases continuously until the formal announcement was made. He said that so called isolated cases had been reported at Jacksonville after the case in Bay street had been treated in June by Dr. Potts, but that the local authorities denied the presence of any epidemic, and placed a guard around each case. This state of things existed until Aug. 16, when the spread of the disease in Jacksonville became so great, cases springing up at various points in the city that could not be traced to any of the so-called isolated cases, that the authorities had to declare the disease epidemic.

Dr. Hamilton said that the disease had been introduced in Decatur, Ala., by a man who had gone from Jacksonville while all of the cases in that city had been reported under guard. His ticket had been from some point outside of the infected city, and consequently he was not denied admittance. The Doctor said the fever had been introduced into Gainesville and Fernandina by base ball players, who had played a game of ball in Jacksonville before the epidemic nature of the disease had been declared, and then returned to these cities.

Dr. Hamilton went on to explain the Government work at Camp Perry, and said that since its establishment there had been only one death from yellow fever in the fever hospital there. He said that the experience of the physicians at the camp went to show that five days was the incubative period and that when persons had been in the camp for that length of time and did not develop the disease, there was no danger of their having it. No person having spent ten days in the camp had developed the fever after leaving the station.

He spoke of the lack of local inspection at Tampa, where the disease first appeared this season, and said that if the first cases had been reported there would probably have been no epidemic, and said he had proof to show that when the case of McCormick was reported as the first in Jacksonville the fever was then epidemic.

He also said that while the fever was raging at Key West, he, at the request of several health officers, had prepared a bill providing for the establishment of a State Board of Health, which was laid on the table by the Florida Legislature through motives of false economy. He concluded by saying that the inspection of Florida cities ordered by the Government had developed the fact that the yellow fever was epidemic in both Enterprise and Fernandina.

A Susquehanna paper has discovered that in an abandoned mine near the city of Carbondale a young man lives the life of a hermit. He was discovered in his subterranean home a few days ago by a party of men seeking shelter from the rain. He lives well and will not give up his singular abode for a good home which he has. A violin is his only companion.

One Puzzle Solved

WHY ALL THE PAINTED CLOCKS POINT TO EIGHTEEN MINUTES AFTER EIGHT.

The New York Sun says: A reader of the Sun, who was also, as all Sun readers are, an observing man, recently sent a letter to this office asking why it was that every clock and watch maker who slung an imitation clock or watch outside his shop as a sign had the hands painted on the face at exactly eighteen minutes after eight o'clock.

This was a poser to every clock seller a reporter asked. The signs came to them that way they said. The majority of them had never noticed the curious coincidence. If asked where they got their signs painted the reply was they left the order with their wholesale dealer and the signs came along. That was all they knew about it.

Inquiries among the wholesalers in Murry street and Maiden lane developed the curious fact that there is no competion in the trade of painting clock signs. A man named Groot has a practical monopoly of the Chicago market and a territory for hundreds of miles around. In Cincinnati W. H. Smith does the business without competition, and in this city, and for as many miles around as New York commands the clock trade W. L. Washburn enjoys a laborious but enviable monopoly.

This state of affairs is brought about by the wholesale clock and watch dealers themselves, who got used to patronizing these three dealers many years ago, and never got enough out of the habit of it to give any other painter the ghost of a show to succeed with an opposition shop.

"But Father Washburn," said one wholesale dealer, "is father of them all, and of emblematic signs as well. He was the first painter to make a sign emblematic of any business, and he started in way back in '53. Why, the big concerns that make metal signs don't bother him at all. He gave his ideas to the world to copy, and the world got rich. The friends he made back in the '50s have stuck to him ever since, and one branch of the business has stuck so close that no competitor in other branches of sign work ever thinks of getting a clock or watch sign to make, and if by chance he did he'd probably be so scared he'd probably send the customer to Father Washburn."

Mr. Washburn was painting a clock on a big star when the reporter called.

He was an old man with a happy face and a white beard. There were clock signs mapped out, half done, and finished, hanging all around, and every blessed one of them had the hands pointed at 18 minutes after 8 o'clock.

"The reason all the dummy clock hands point to that hour" said Mr. Washburn. "is because I paint them all, and I always paint that hour. When I painted the first emblematic sign ever painted as a matter of business, back in '53, it was a clock. I don't know how I put the hands. All I remember about it is that it was for P. T. Barnum's old concern on Courtlandt street, the Jerome clock company, since gone up the spout. I painted the hands any way I chose, up, down, crosswise, or together, as my mood dictated, from that time up to April 14, 1865. That night the news was flashed into the city that Lincoln had been shot in Ford's theatre. I was working on a sign for Jeweler Adams, who used to keep on Broadway, opposite Stewart's' at the time. I was making a great clock to hang outside. Adams came running in while I was at work. He was a strong Lincoln man. He said:

"'Point those hands at the hour Lincoln was shot, that the deed may never be forgotten.'

"I painted the hands, therefore at eighteen minutes after eight. The idea struck me forcibly, and when I came to look at the effect I found it was the most convenient arrangement, since it displayed both the hands well, and left the top half of the clock free to paint in the name of the clock seller if desired. So I threw all my stencils away and made new ones for that hour.

I have never varied from the system since, and that's the reason all the clock signs point as they do. The Chicago any Cincinati people, I find, are doing the same thing. They don't know the story, but they probably were won to my plan by the capability of that particular arrangement for artistic display in painting."

Miscarried Profligacy

According to information received at Washington there were $100,000 expended by the Republicans in West Virginia between the morning of Saturday before the election and the close of the polls on Tuesday evening, November 6. When it is reflected that the total vote of the State is less than 150,000 and that a large part of the territory is inaccessible in so short a period because of want of railroad facilties, it must appear at once that the expenditure was illegitimate and corrupt.

Soon after the opening of the campaign attention was directed to the colonization of the State by a railroad company with which Stephen B. Elkins is connected. Later a rumor was published that a difference had risen between Chairman Quay and General Goff, the Republican candidate for Governor, because Quay wouldn't allow Goff free foot in the distribution of the boodle. Acording to these lately developed facts the differences must have been composed and all hands given licence to spend money freely.

Yet with all this profligacy, and in the face of the obvious corruption, the Republicans were unable to get at majority either on the vote for election or Governor. Nathan Goff proposes to organize a revolution in the State by claiming the Governorship to which he was not elected. In this treasonable and desperate course he is sustained by Quay. If they carry out their plan they should both be punished. —Phila. Evening Herald.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Four years ago when the Democrats succeeded in overturning the supremacy of their oponents who had been in power for a quarter of a century, it was several weeks before republicans were willing to admit their defeat. When the Cleveland administration took it's seat, and began to apply the pruning knife in the work of "turning the rascals out" cries of "civil service reform" were heard from every quarter. No republican office holders voluntarily gave up their positions, and when for any cause they were removed, the civil service law was invoked, and no such office-holder relinquished his grip upon the public crib until he was most unceremoniously kicked out, and then there was great muttering.

Now witness the difference. Immediately after the recent Presidential election the choice of Harrison and Morton is unanimously conceded; the heads of departments everywhere express a determination to resign as soon as the new chief magistrate is inaugurated, in order that the administration may not be embarrassed. That is the difference between republicanism and democracy; on the onehand greed for office and an appeal to anything that will only keep them in office. On the other hand, a ready acquiescence to the will of the majority, and a willingness to avoid all embarrassment to the administration.

Quay's Virginia Scheme.

GOVERNOR LEE SAYS IT WILL FAIL BECAUSE THE VOTES ARE AGAINST IT.

RICHMOND, November 24.—The threats of Mahone and Quay about quo warranto proceedings directed against the Democratic electors of this State creates no excitement here. The State Board of canvassers will meet in the Capitol here Monday and begin the work of canvassing the official returns of the election of November 9 for electors and Congressmen. The members of the board have no authority to do any thing but declare who is elected upon the returns received by them. They cannot hear evidence nor consider any facts except those embraced in the returns from the various counties of the State. The whole scheme of the Mahone people is to agitate the charge of suppressing colored votes in the South. The only reward the investigation can have to Mahone will be to blacken before a Northern public the names of the white people of his State, as was atetmpted in the Danville investigation. In that case Mahone made use of John S. Wise as a cat's paw and pushed him forward as the persecutor of Virginians, while the wily little General remained in the background. When it was too late Mr. Wise discovered Mahone's little game. In the proceeding he has now caused to be instituted Mahone will push forward some other member of his party, while he remains behind the scenes and eggs him on.

Governor Lee, when asked about this movement, said he had received private advices that quo warranto proceedings would be attempted against the electors and he declared that he was glad to see such capers cut, for its effect would be to rally en masse the Democrats of the State, make them ride over all opposition and carry the State with a fine majority next fall. "The canvassing board," said he "will be governed by law and give the certificate of election to the Democratic electors; and the Democratic electors will give the vote of the State to Cleveland All the Quays and Butlers and Daddleys and Mahones cannot prevent that, because the result will be in accordance with the Constitution and laws. The bayonet can interpose, and the bayonet only, to change that result."

Attorney General Rufus A. Ayers said: "When the certificates have been issued to the electors they cannot be prevented from meeting and casting their votes for President and Vice President. When the votes are cast and duly certified there is no way of going behind the returns. This was decided by the Electoral Commission in the Tilden and Hayes contest."

A Revolt Among Veterans.

DISRUPTION THREATENING THE GRAND ARMY.

The Philadelphia Record prints the following:

There is every probability that there will be a split in the Grand Army of the Republic within a very short time, and that another organization of union veterans will be formed.

The withdrawal from the organization of General John M. Palmer, one of its founders, and democratic candidate for governor of Illinois at the recent election, together with his charges that the order has been used for political purposes, has created a profound sensation in Grand Army circles.

General Palmer was a member of Stephenson post, No. 30, of Chicago, and is a post commander of the department of Illinois He has always taken an active interest in the order. He said recently that there was nothing for him to say further than that there was too much politics in the order. He expressed great regret that he was compelled to sever his connection with the order and added: "From its beginning until the present year I have been enthusiastically hopeful for the good of the Grand Army. I have been disappointed, that's all, and my post has very promptly and very honorably, I think, given me my withdrawal card." He also expressed a willingness to head a movement in the interest of a rival organizations of veterans. This has set the democratic members thinking, and most of them seem anxious to enter such an order. It is estimated that there are about 2,000 democratic soldiers connected with the Grand Army in this state.

POLITICS WILL STILL EXIST.

Colonel Charles E. Tiptoh, who is a member of General Robert Patterson post, No. 275, encampment No. 2, of the Union Veteran Legion, and an officer of the Hancock Veteran Legion, said yesterday that a new organization would undoubtedly be formed. "Of course the Grand Army is a political organization indirectly and not openly," said the colonel. "If you are a republican it is as well and good, but if you dare be a democrat, why that settles you, so to speak. At one time it was a republican organization pure and simple, and democrats could not join it. It was changed but a few years ago at the annual encampment of the department of Pennsylvania held either at Pittsburg or Wilkesbarre, I don't remember which. General Wagner tried to have it made an out-and-out republican organization, but was unsuccessful. There is a rule which prohibits the discussion of politics in the post rooms, and which prohibits the wearing of any insignia of the order at a political demonstration, but it does not amount to a row of pins, and is violated almost every day. The order is manipulated by the heads of each state or department in the interests of the republicans. Of this there is not the slightest doubt. It is so in this department I know.

PROVIDED FAT BERTHS.

"Look back in the history of the order, and you will find that after a man has served as commander of this department he has been appointed or elected to some political office by the republicans. Why the position is even to-day looked upon as a stepping stone to a snug political berch. General Wagner has been fixed in a fat office, A. Wilson Norris was made auditor general of this state, Thomas J. Stewart is now in enjoyment of the office of secretary of internal affairs, and the list might easily be further extended.

"We want a new order and we are going to have it. General W. S. Rosecrans started such a movement about two years ago, but it fell through. But there is no use in talking about the subject, for every democrat in the order is well aware that the Grand Army of the Republic is a republican organization in disguise."

Catarrh

May affect any portion of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, and the most liable to be neglected. It cannot be cured by local applications. Being a constitutional disease it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, working through the blood, eradicates the impurity which causes and promotes the catarrh, and soon effects a permanent cure. At the same time Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up the whole system, and makes one feel renewed in strength and health. If you suffer from catarrh, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Ringing Noises Impure Blood

"I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head. The effort to clear my head in the morning by hawking and spitting was painful. Hood's Sarsaparilla gave me relief immediately, while in time I was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house as I think it is worth its weight in gold." MRS. G. B. GRIB, 1029 Eighth St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

The secret success of rapidly improving towns is the fact that all the people join as one man in every effort and enterprise calculated to build up the interests of the town. It cannot be expected that a town will prosper as it should when the chief occupation of each person is trying to pull his neighbor down.—Ex.

R. C. Rishel completed his three years apprenticeship in this office November 17th. He has concluded to remain with us for some time, and give special attention to job printing. He has been a faithful workman and has pretty thoroughly mastered the newspaper work. A close application to work in our jobbing department, which is always crowded, will fit him for work in any of the offices of the large cities.

According to the Indianapolis Journal, president-elect Harrison's home organ, Mr. Harrison is a firm believer in civil service reform, and that efficient office-holders will not be removed, except for violation of trust. It however, the spirit should predominate the post office in this town ought not to suffer. It is already rumored on our streets that the following will be applicants for the place: A. B. Cathcart, S. A. Wilson, F. P. Drinker, J. C. Brown and F. M. Everett. We presume that before Mr. Harrison takes his seat on the 4th of March, this list of applicants will be still further increased.

Miss Sydney Worth, the gifted and brilliant artiste, is deservedly one of the shining lights of the dramatic profession. She has a pretty face, a handsome and graceful figure, and a voice possessing remarkable range and musical sweetness. Her acting is bright and full of girlish gayety in comedy, and most pathetic and strong in her emotional work. We predict for her a great future.—Cincinatti Enquirer, Nov. 5th, 1886.

GEORGE A. CLARK, P. M.

Mrs. O. A. Jacoby died at her residence on South Market Street Tuesday evening about eight o'clock. She has been an invalid for the past three months with a disease of the stomach, no food could be retained, and gradually she wasted away. For a few weeks past she seemed to be gaining strength, so that her friends had hopes of her complete recovery, but a relapse occurred Tuesday morning. Her age was sixty-one years, eight months and twenty-five days. She was a daughter of George Hartman and was born in Esry. Funeral services will be held at the house Friday morning at ten o'clock, conducted by Rev. F. P. Manhart. Interment in Rosemont cemetery.

In order to close out the first edition we will send, postage paid, for one dollar to any address a copy of the History of Columbia County. This volume contains 600 pages, and is handsomely bound in cloth, with gilt lettering. The price asked does not pay first cost, but this special inducement is offered in order to close out. 75 cents will buy the book at this office. The information contained in this book is invaluable to every intelligent citizen, and many persons have paid twelve dollars for a history of the county, containing no more information than can be found in the book we offer for 75 cents. In fact the historical portion of the twelve dollar book was largely copied from Freeze's History. But strange to say, there were more copies of the former work sold than of the latter. Why was this? Simply because "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country." The writer and the publishers of one book that sold at first for $2.50, lived in Bloomsburg, and there was no chance for humbuggery; the writers and publishers of the $12.00 book were entire strangers, and hence there was a chance to be swindled, and therefore the book took like wildfire, and nearly 1000 copies were sold.

Council Proceedings.

November 20, 1888.

Special meeting. Present, P. S. Harman president, and members Wells, Hassert, Sterling, Wolf and Ringler. The president stated that the object of the meeting was to consider the propriety of permitting D. J. Waller to connect an eight inch branch for drain to the sewer now being put in by C. W. Miller, contractor. After some discussion council adjourned.

November 21, 1888.

Council met pursuant to adjournment. The following communication was received from D. J. Waller: "Provided the sewer of the town shall be made twelve inches in diameter from a point south of the canal from station 14 to station 3 of sewer survey and the subscriber allowed an eigh inch pipe connection south of the canal, the subscriber will pay the excess of cost of pipe and laying along that of a ten inch pipe now contracted for. Provided, the town council shall within one year lay an eight inch pipe upon the hard pan or gravel across Market street, the subscriber will allow them to drain through the same into a ditch or pipe to be maintained by the subscriber to connect with the said main sewer. Resp.

D. J. WALLER.

On motion the following resolution was unanimously passed, viz: "Resolved that the foregoing proposition of D. J. Waller of 21st November, 1888 be accepted and that in the event of the proposed twelve inch pipe proving too small to accomodate the flow from Mr. Waller's eight inch pipe in adddition to the town sewerage, then the said eight inch pipe may be disconnected from said 12 inch sewer main. The excess of cost of twelve inch pipe over ten inch pipe from point of intersection to station 3 at river, to be settled between D. J. Waller and C. W. Miller without liability of the town therefor, the openings to said eight inch branch to be guarded in a manner to be approved by the town engineer." On motion council adjourned.

"An Important Question Answered."

The question is often asked, where can I get good, well-made and stylish clothing at moderate prices. With confidence we recommend our readers to the house of E. O. Thompson, Philadelphia. Personal dealings with this firm lead us to believe that to do better is not possible. For the coming cold weather they have prepared a most extensive stock of unusual good clothing, which for quality and low prices has not been obtainable heretofore. Special attention is called to their illustrated advertisement in this issue, which conveys an idea of the specialties they have in overcoats, suits, trousers, cape coats and ulsters. Samples of cloth of any garment can be obtained by simply writing for them. Instructions for self-measurement and how to order their clothing by mail go with all samples.

When in Philadelphia we advise you to visit their store, 1338 Chestnut street, directly opposite the Mint. *

The Mud Run Disaster.

A BASIS UPON WHICH THE VALLEY CO. WILL SETTLE.

The rate of damages for loss of life in the Mud Run disaster on the Lehigh Valley R. R. was on Wednesday of last week established by Mr. Wm. Connel of Scranton, who represents the company in the adjustments of the claims. These were fixed at $3500 where the death of the head of the house involved, and at $1,500 for the death of children and on this basis two payments were made. These figures have been arrived at after a careful consideration with many of the afflicted relatives and are the result of an average of the claims presented. The Lehigh Valley Company authorized Mr. Connell to settle claims on this basis, and it is expected that most of the death losses will be adjusted before the end of this week. The deaths in all number sixty-four, most of whom are children. The death losses will therefore foot up $100,000. A large number of claims for injuries have been presented to the company's representative, but no conclusion has been arrived at thereon.

Notice to Collectors and Township Officers.

An act of the Legislature and approved June 2nd 1881, (See pamphlet laws, page 45) requires tax collectors, township and borough officers to make return of seated and unseated lands upon which no property can be found from which to make taxes to the County Commissioners on or before the first day of January next, with a sufficient description by boundaries or otherwise, of each separate lot or tract and about the quantity of the same. Those who fail to make returns by said day will be held for such loss. Taxes so returned become a lien against the property so returned. We have blanks on which these returns are to be made and will furnish them upon application of collectors.

It is the duty of each School Board, Supervisor, and Overseer of the Poor to see that these taxes are returned.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, Nov. 26, 1888.

5000 Dress Patterns!

It will take days and days to pass them all out. When we take 40,000 or 50,000 yards of stuffs in a lump from a dealer who has too much, you may be sure the prices are interesting.

Dress Goods generally were never lower, but, taking them on the low level that prevails, 75 cents put into one of these Dress Patterns does the work of $1, or even more.

There would be less of the sensational in all this if the stuffs were off color in any way. They aren't. There isn't a wrong thing about them. First chop for style, weave, quality, dye. New goods of the best makes. And fine wool at that.

More than two hundred and twenty-five styles and colorings in just the weights and weaves you'd pick if you had the run of a dozen counters. Some of the sorts;

Plaids
Stripes
Checks
Poules
Ottamens
Monte Cloths
Serge Stripes
Figured Stripes
Armure Stripes
Chevron Stripes ¼ to ½ inch
Single Diagonals
Double Diagonals
Corded Checks, three sizes, self-color.

In all the going shades and black.

We cut the whole business into liberal Dress Patterns and let them go for three-quarters or less of the regular low-down piece price.

$5 worth for $3.75
$6 worth for $4
$6.75 worth for $4.50
$7.65 worth for $5.25
$8 worth for $6
$9 worth for $6.75

There are spots just as good all through Dress Goods. You may miss it if you don't see the 36 inch all-wool Plaids and Stripes at 50 cents. The lot is rounded full, the stuffs such as might well be a half more.

The best Black Silk-Warp Henriettas are as easy to tell as the best Broadcloth. Softness, quality, finish, even-ness of shade—not one will be wanting. Best is always cheapest in the long run. Take a Priestley Silk-Warp for instance—finest of pure silk, choicest clip of Australian wool. They go to the dye in the natural gray; come out black of a uniform shade. You can exactly match such stuff years afterward. Ask for any number in the long line of these choicest Black Silk and Wools. They're all here.

Among the Black All Wool Henriettas are some with extra heavy warp, made to our order. More body, weight and firmness to the goods. 46 inches wide, $1 to $1.50; lighter warp, 75c.

Almost everything in Paris Novelty Dress Stuffs is peculiar. Audacity with richness. One of the oddest of the lot shows a design as if a handful of match sticks had been flung over it. Ridiculous to think of, but quaintly taking after all. 7 shades, 40 in., $1.

A big part of the Basement is getting livelier all the time with advance notes of the Holiday hurrah. Of course it's where the Toys and Dolls and Games are gathered. Playthings, and study-things that have all the seeming of playthings. A little world of amusement for Children. It's as good as a circus for the little ones to look about there. Wonders in mechanical toys—sure-enough cars that run on the merest bits of track; trumpeters that trump, and all that.

Let the little bright eyes come with you; you'll feel younger and they'll feel cheerier for the treat.

The December BOOK NEWS 112 pages, richly illustrated, will have complete lists of Holiday Books for big folks and little folks. You are likely to save $1 or more on every $5 you put into Christmas Books if you let BOOK NEWS help you. Can you do better with 5 cents?

Progress of the South.

Cheering reports come from the south of the great business boom in that section. The development of the natural resources has put business in the Southern States on a solid basis.

At Charlotte, North Carolina, four large cotton mills are in process of erection, one of which has just been put in full operation, and the other three will be ready by January 1st.

At Birmingham, Alabama the following report is given:

Eight years ago this city was only a village, and the development of the coal and iron resources of this section had just begun. Four years ago many furnaces were in blast. Coal mines had been opened and the success of iron making in Alabama had been fully established. A comparison of the trade and manufacturing of this city with four years ago shows that both have more than quadrupled within that time, but competition has perhaps slightly reduced profits, although there is plenty of margin yet, especially in iron making. Recently numerous small industries have been established, and in every instance they have been very successful. An unusual amount of building is being done this year, and both skilled and common labor finds ready employment at good wages. Six new furnaces have gone in blast since Jan. 1, and five others are building and will go in blast by Sept. 1 1889. Samuel Thomas & Sons, of Pennsylvania, have commenced the erection of a second 150-ton furnace and a 100-ton rolling-mill. The first furnace went in blast in April and has been a complete success.

The reports from Atlanta, Georgia, state that during the last four years business has increased wonderfully, and the territory covered from this point has been greatly enlarged. Eight years ago the business interests of this country were exceedingly active. The people had about overcome the vicissitudes of war and had capital to invest. Added to this, Northern capital began to pour in and the scope of manufactures to widen; cotton in manufacturing, plough works, wood works and all the handicrafts were represented. It was in consequence of this activity that in 1880 Atlanta appeared on the census tables as the second city in the Union for the number of its inhabitants engaged in mechanical pursuits. The trade in mercantile lines kept pace with the increase in manufactures and the foundations of many large fortunes were made.

The most glowing account comes from Tennessee. In 1880 Chattanooga had only fifty-four industries employing $2,792,000 while at the present time there are 149 industries, giving employment to $11,000,000 of capital. While it is true that for the past few years iron has commanded a very low figure, all the furnaces in the Chattanooga district, which includes South Pittsburg, Dayton and a number of other iron centres, have been running on full time and have been able to dispose of all their products at fair prices. This condition of affairs existed when the Presidential campaign opened this year. Business went along just the same as if there had been no National election on hand. All the factories in Chattanooga have been running on full time, and a careful survey of the field shows that the average increase of business concerns during 1888 will be at least 25 per cent. over 1887. Yet last year was the most prosperous year in the history of the city. At the present time and since the beginning of the year more than $2,500,000 has been invested in new buildings, exceeding the operations of 1887 by $1,000,000. Nor is this true of Chattanooga alone but in the past three years, for instance, seventeen furnaces have begun operations within a radius of 150 miles. There are two here in Nashville, two in Florence, five in Sheffield, one in Decatur, four in Easley and three in Bessemer. All these are doing a satisfactory business now, and so far as the iron industry is concerned, it is very much more flourishing than four years ago. This is the leading industry of this section. All our industries, however, felt much more settled this year than in 1884, because there was much uneasiness then as to the result. Now, however, that the Democratic Administration has not done anything to radically change the natural order of business, there was a general feeling that the country was safe in the hands of either party.

From Roanoke, Virginia, comes the following:

No section of the South has prospered more than southwestern Virginia in the past eight years, and no place has grown more rapidly than Roanoke City. In 1880 it was known as Big Lick, and had a population of 350, one tobacco factory, one tavern and two or three stores.

The completion of the Shenandoah Valley Railroad to this place in 1883 and erection of the Crozer Steel and Iron Works and the Roanoke Machine Works in 1884 swelled the population to 5,000. Since then it has continued to grow with scarcely a check, and today the city has 14,000 inhabitants. The Crozer Steel and Iron Works has a capital of $500,000, and employs here and in mines 550 men. The capital stock of the Roanoke Machine Works in 1884 was $500,000, and 500 men and boys were employed, the annual pay-roll aggregating $200,000. During the past year employment was given to 1,000 persons, and the pay-roll footed up to $600,000. In addition, several hundred men are employed in the general offices, depots and yards of the Norfolk and Western and the Shenandoah Valley railroads. The same is true of other corporations here.

A rolling mill has lately been erected and the largest fruit cannery in the South has been in successful operation for several months. In addition there may be noted three tobacco factories, an ice factory, two large planing mills, a sash, door, blind and wood turning factory, five brick factories, a steam flouring mill and two carriage factories. All have sprung up in the last four years, and are doing a prosperous business. The canning interests of this section are rapidly increasing, Botetourt County having thirty-five factories, Roanoke six, and this city one.

Further South and West industries have been established which are also doing well. In 1884 the local shipments of the Norfolk and Western Railroad were 660,871 tons; in 1887, 1,829,516 tons. The mineral shipments in the meantime have increased from 347,876 tons to 1,417,547 tons. About nine hundred buildings have been erected in the last year against 340 the year previous.

The people of this city and section are not meddling with politics, but devote themselves to business and to building up the city.

The area sown to winter wheat in the Middle and Western States is fully equal to last year.

His Speech Saved His Life.

"If you would like to say a few words before we string you up," said the spokesman of the vigilance committee, sternly, "you may have the chance."

"There is something I would like to say," responded the condemned horse-thief, pale but self-possessed. "All I ask is that you will permit me to say it without interruption."

"Go ahead," said the spokesman, laconically. "We'll let you finish."

"Then, gentlemen," began the condemned man, with deep emotion, "I have a few words of solemn warning to utter. In the innocent and happy days of my young manhood, before I came to Arizona and fell into evil ways I was engaged in a useful and honorable calling. Had I never abandoned it I might have been still a respectable and upright citizen. Though I have become a bad man and am about to receive my just punishment, I have always kept a memento of those happier days. In my valise, gentlemen, you will find a copy of a little work entitled 'The American Voter's Text-Book,' of which I have sold nearly a thousand copies in one county in Pennsylvania alone. It is indispensable to every man who would keep himself thoroughly posted as to those questions concerning which it is the duty of every citizen to be fully advised. You will find in that volume, gentlemen, full and accurate information as to the political platforms of all the parties, election returns from every state in the Union, names of members of Congress, Judges of the various courts, etc., with a mass of miscellaneous statistics and facts never before grouped together in one work. Bound in cloth or half calf the price of this valuable book has always been"—

The Snake Liked Persimmons

AND IT WAS OWING TO THIS WEAKNESS OF HIS THAT THE NEGRO ESCAPED.

Recently Madison Jolly, a well-known negro of Greene county, was attacked by a rattlesnake about three miles from here. He threw his bundles down and made for the nearest tree, which happened to be a large persimmon tree loaded with ripe fruit, into which he quickly climbed, knocking off some of the ripe persimmons as he made his way up into the tree. When the snake arrived at the foot of the tree, instead of climbing up after the negro he began to eat the fruit which had fallen to the ground. After the snake had finished devouring all the persimmons in sight he began to coil himself around the tree preparatory to climbing it. The frightened negro, seeing the snake had eaten the fallen persimmons, gathered a handful and threw them to the ground, then the snake uncoiled from around the tree and began to eat the fruit the darky had thrown down. This was repeated several times, when the darky bethought himself of a small vial of morphine which he was carrying home to his sick wife. He split open several persimmons and emptied the contents of the vial upon them, and dropped them to his snakeship, who immediately ate them. The drug acted like a charm upon the snake, and he was soon lying helpless upon the ground. The negro climbed down and ran to a house near by and secured help and returned and dispatched the snake lying helpless from the effects of the morphine. The snake was eighteen feet long, six inches in diameter and had forty-four rattles and a button on the end of his tail, and had been the terror of Tubb's Creek swamp for the past twenty-five or thirty years.—*Gainesville (Ala.) Mrs. Cleveland's Grit.

A lady who was at the White House on Tuesday night says that there was no more nervousness displayed by Mrs. Cleveland than by any other lady in the group. All were deeply interested, and the rest of them did not attempt to control a feminine impatience when it became evident that the revelations of the evening were not going to be entirely happy. But Mrs. Cleveland was "true grit" all through. She chatted and laughed and entered into the discussion over Miss Endicott's approaching marriage as if that were the upper most subject in her mind. As the evening wore on the ladies, with true womanly sympathy, began to get all possible comfort out of the situation and endeavored to buoy up the hopes of the men. They all separated a half hour after midnight and went home with the certainty of defeat. Mrs. Cleveland and her mother were brave and smiling to the last; neither showed by the least word their great disappointment. Mrs. Cleveland intends making her last winter in the White House the most memorable of her career there. She will have lots of friends to stay with her from time to time, and she will vary the beaten track of official hospitalities by a number of less formal events which she will arrange for the pleasure of her guests. As long as the Indian summer lasts the President and Mrs. Cleveland will remain at their country place, but they intend to spend a pleasant winter at the White House.—Washington Post.

W. B. Ross (colored) of Greenville, Texas, principal of the colored school, and a licensed attorney, voted the democratic ticket because of his belief in tariff reform. The white republicans of the city stirred up a hatred among the colored people, many of whom refused to allow their children to go to school, and otherwise endeavored to force the principal to resign his position.

Gen. J. A. Bumont, Chief of the Steamboat Inspection Service, reports that during the last fiscal year 6,425 vessels were inspected and 29,541 officers licensed, a decided increase over the work of the preceding year. The total number of accidents resulting in loss of life was 36, causing the death of 202 persons, or 18 less than during the previous year. Of the killed 85 were passengers and 117 were persons employed on the steamers. The loss of life during the year is less than the average annual loss for the decade terminated by the year, the average being 213. The annual average loss of life from 1859 to 1868, was 721, and from 1869 to 1878 365.

Ben Butler's Washington Elephant

Everybody who has visited the capital in recent years has had pointed out to him the stone dwelling just south of the Capitol grounds and has been told that it belongs to General Benjamin F. Butler. Everybody who is familiar with the recent work of the appropriation committees of Congress knows that General Butler has been exceedingly anxious to unload his big house upon the government. He has succeeded in renting it to Congress for the use of some of the House committees, but thus far his efforts to sell it have not been successful. There are persons in Washington now who are uncharitable enough to ask whether the purchase of the Butler house at a round figure would not be regarded by its owner as a fair exchange for the Republican speeches he made this fall in Michigan and Boston.—Washington News.

Salt Rheum

With its intense itching, dry, hot skin, often broken into painful cracks, and the little watery pimples, often causes indescribable suffering. Hood's Sarsaparilla has wonderful power over this disease. It purifies the blood and expels the humor, and the skin heals without a scar. Send for book containing many statements of cures, to C. I. HOOD & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

Wanamaker and the Cabinet.

"Two things are certain in regard to General Harrison's Cabinet," said a well informed gentleman yesterday and one who made the nomination possible at Chicago. "The first is that Pennsylvania will have a portfolio and the other is that Lew Wallace will be Secretary of War. The Pennsylvania man, I believe, will be John Wanamaker, though he is not a certainty. Mr. Blaine will have the State Department offered him beyond a doubt and there are indications that he will accept."—New York Press, Rep.

People Pay Heavy Bills

For medical attendance and medicine. Sickness is expensive, and those with small incomes feel this burden keenly. The physician must sometimes be called but he is not needed one-tenth as often as many think. What is required is a family medicine; one that will relieve and cure those ailments which are liable to come at any season and to attack both sexes and all ages. Amid the host of articles that are offered to the public for this purpose nearly all are useless or worse than useless. It is no vain boast to say that the medicine herein mentioned is of a very different character. What it has done is known to multitudes of persons whom it has cured of weary and painful diseases. It has saved time, money and many dear and precious lives. Now please understand that as the life is in the blood so disease and death are in the blood. Get the poison out of the blood and life and health at once return to every part of the body. Dr. Brown's Sarsaparilla does this work quickly and surely through its direct and positive action upon the stomach, bowels, kidneys, liver and skin. For all waste and corrupt elements must be cast off by means of those channels. Rheumatism, scrofula, bronchitis, gout consumption, malaria, catarrh, hay fever, all skin affections and eruptions are diseases of the blood.

Mr. Geo. H. Wish, of the firm of Thaxter & Wish, Bangor, Me., was afflicted with a scrofulous humor which caused troublesome sores upon both his legs. Many remedies were used and several physicians consulted, without result. After taking Brown's Sarsaparilla a short time he was better, and soon the eruptions disappeared and he is now all right. This is only one of a thousand victories gained by is offered by the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for a case of Chronic Nasal Catarrh which they cannot cure.

BROWN'S Sarsaparilla.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.—Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; the eyes are weak, watery, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is offensive; smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a loathing, cough and general debility. Only a few of the above-named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, or less understood by physicians.

By its mild, soothing, and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases of Catarrh, "cold in the head," Coryza, and Catarrhal Headache.

Sold by druggists everywhere; 50 cents.

"Untold Agony from Catarrh."

PROF. W. HAUSNER, the famous mesmerist, of Ithaca, N. Y., writes: "Some ten years ago I suffered untold agony from chronic nasal catarrh. My family physician gave me up as incurable, and said I must die. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards sunset, my voice would become so hoarse I could barely speak above a whisper. In the morning my coughing and clearing of my throat would almost strangle me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, in three months, I was a well man, and the cure has been permanent."

"Constantly Hawking and Spitting."

THOMAS J. RUSHING, Esq., 206 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh for three years. At times I could hardly breathe, and was constantly hawking and spitting, and for the last eight months could not breathe through the nostrils. I thought nothing could be done for me. Luckily, I was advised to try Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience astounding results and a permanent cure."

Three Bottles Cure Catarrh.

ELI ROBBINS, Bunyan P. O., Columbia Co., Pa., says: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."

Cabinet Speculations.

Their is a tremendous, although hidden, excitement in the inner Republican circles over a report in circulation here that Mr. Blaine desires and will accept the position of secretary of State in Gen. Harrison's Cabinet. The information regarding Mr. Blaine's wishes comes from sources so direct and positive that it amounts almost to proof. This has created a great deal of feeling and has caused the utterance of some very decided objections from several quarters, the mere mention of which would be most significant. Some of Mr. Blaines friends are denying the story and insisting that he prefers the Senate, while others, less discreet, are declaring that their favorite leader will get the cabinet position named, and that it is part of a bargain made at Chicago or elsewhere.

The repeated assertions of Hon. John C. New that Gen. Harrison is hampered by no bargains is quoted in reply, but they are received derisively.

One thing is certain, the feeling stirred up by the possibility of Mr. Blaine's exaltation will cause a desperate fight to be made again t him by men whom Gen. Harrison cannot afford to ignore. Senator Sherman, who is the only opponent of Mr. Blaine mentioned so far, says he will not go into the Cabinet under pressure, and that he does not expect to be invited. He insists that he wishes to remain in the Senate, and that he prefers his place at the head of the Foreign Affairs Committee to that of Secretary of State.

Gen. Harrison has written several letter to Mr. Sherman since election day inviting him to come to Indianapolis, but the Ohio Senator does not see his way clearly to an acceptance of the invitation for reasons that are personal. He does not want to go into the Cabinet and he does not want to figure as a Cabinet maker. In the coming four months there will be some very fine political intriguing and a great many interesting developments.

A Hairless Mare.

A very interesting equine curiosity, in the shape of a horse absolutely without hair, arrived on the Alameda from Australia on Saturday last. It was exhibited to a few connoisseurs in horseflesh yesterday by the owner, R. A. Cunningham. The horse, or rather the mare, for it belongs to the latter gender, is a pronounced phenomenon. Her skin is black and as smooth and fine as that of a human being. She stands a little over fifteen hands high, and is about seven years old. It would be difficult to find a handsomer or more shapely animal. She looks well bred and is strongly developed. In action the movement of every muscle is plainly discernable by reason of the animal's utter nakedness. Were it not for her abnormal appearance the mare would make a most excellent carriage horse. Anything more peculiar than the appearance of the beast, with her smooth shiny skin, black as ebony, attempting to whisk from her back with a hairless, stumpy tail the flies clustering there it is impossible to conceive. The softness and smoothness of every part of her anatomy, even where the mane ought to be found, precludes the idea that the hair has been gotten rid of artificially, as by shaving. Mr. Cunningham purchased the mare in Cahuca, Victoria, from a farmer, who utilized her as a buggy horse.—San Francisco Call.

Dr. HOSTETTER, the recently deceased Pittsburg millionaire, died without leaving a will. The reason he did so has just been found out. A month age he did make a will which contained a bequest giving to the city of Pittsburg a fine art gallery and mechanics' hall. It was to cost one million dollars and was to have been the most elaborate structure of the kind in the United States. The will provided that the doctor's eldest son must be one of the Board of Directors governing the institution, to be succeeded in turn at death by the eldest male heir, and so on, from sire to son. After this had all been settled, the City Controller, acting under the advice of counsel, took a step most unfortunate for Pittsburg. Dr. Hostetter was bondsman for Andrew Hartapee, a city contractor, and a judgement had been rendered against him. On that judgement execution was issued on some of the doctors possessions. He was clearly liable, and none knew it better than he, but this act of the Controller highly incensed him, and he went direct to the safe deposit company, where he had placed the will, and tore the documents into shreds. He never could be induced to make another.

It is estimated that the sum of $2,000,000 was locked up by election bets in New York city alone during the recent national contest.

The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.:

Gentlemen—I can cheerfully and truthfully say that S. S. S. is the greatest blood purifier on earth. In 1884 I contracted blood poison. Physicians treated me with no good results. I took a half dozen different kinds of blood medicines, but, without receiving any permanent relief I was induced to try S. S. S. I began the first bottle with the gravest doubts of success. I had been so often deceived. But improvement came, and I continued its use until perfectly well. I have since married, and have a healthy family. No trace of the disease is seen. Swift's Specific did all this for me, and I am grateful. Yours truly, J. S. STRADER.

MASON & HAMLIN

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makes of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues $22 TO $500, free.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the desirable purity and tone, together with greatest possible refinement of increased capacity. GRAND & UPRIGHT PIANOS, with greatly improved capacity for standing in tune and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians, and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant. Piano and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.
